

FAIRBANKS GETS CORDIAL WELCOME

NEW YORK, March 24.—Charles Warren Fairbanks, at home after a year of absence, was the guest of honor at a reception given by the daughters of Indiana in New York at the Hotel Astor.

Mr. Fairbanks listened with pleasure to many speeches in praise of Indiana, and when he rose to speak himself, his first words were of home.

"We never got beyond the influence of Indiana in circumnavigating the globe," he said. "The farther we went from her boundaries the greater became our appreciation of our state and our nation."

"We have a heritage in the United States enjoyed by no other people. Everywhere we found that other nations are studying more and more American institutions. We are spreading our influence, not by force of arms, but by exalted example. The influence of the United States was never more potent than today, in the morning of the twentieth century."

Dr. William Bayard Hale, formerly a foreign newspaper correspondent, caused Mr. Fairbanks to prick up his ears at political news from home.

"While I was at the White House last week," said Dr. Hale, "I heard a conversation between James Watson, former whip of the house and a candidate last year for governor of Indiana, and President Taft. Watson seemed to think that things looked very bad out there for Senator Beveridge. He told the president that Beveridge would probably go home and stay a while."

Dr. Hale turned and addressed himself directly to Mr. Fairbanks.

DECLARES NEW YORK REFORM IS MOSTLY A HUMBUG

TROY, N. Y., March 24.—Recent attempt to reorganize the republican party in New York state was humbuggery; the Alldis-Conger investigation at Albany is an expensive and almost useless undertaking for which "50 cents" worth of white wash would be a suitable substitute, and William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York, is a real reformer with a purpose.

These views were expressed in a speech here tonight by W. O. Howard, a state supreme court justice and a republican.

Professional reformers, the justice denounced as "vapid, sapless, spineless, chintzy, sexless beings, sprung from no race and owned by no race."

The justice was speaking at a St. Patrick's Day dinner of the Sons of St. Patrick of this city, and after a tribute to the Irish he took up the present political situation in this state, growing out of the Alldis-Conger case.

He said in part: "In my own party a queer condition exists and, in consequence, every one is seized just now with a desire to clean house. Whether it is the grafter or the reformer that is to be cleaned out, I have not learned, but $50,000 is to be spent to clean house; 50 cents' worth whose face wore a broad smile. He continued: "Isn't it getting pretty bad when the people think this country can do without the towering aid of the intellectual senator from Indiana?"

of whitewash would do as well. Of course a few dead bones may be rattled by these investigations, or perhaps a few live ones, fully protected by the statute of limitations. But suppose they are rattled; what follows? Even if somebody is punished, what of that? No reform is worked.

"It is not more investigations that we need; it is more honesty; not more laws, but more common sense. We have too many laws now—so many that nobody knows what they are nor where they are.

"The way to clean house is the way that Gaynor is doing it. His way doesn't cost a cent. He is not a counterfeit reformer, but a real one. He is cleaning house with the laws which he has; they do not assist him much nor hinder him any—he would do it if he had no laws at all. He saws wood. He will clean up New York before he gets through with it, and clean it up well at a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the taxpayers."

He then declared that "in fact he is accomplishing more reform than all the self-confessed reformers put together."

Shifting to the recent attempt of Senator Elihu Root and others to reorganize the republican state committee with the ousting of Timothy L. Woodruff, the state chairman, he said:

"A general alarm having been occasioned by recent disclosures, everybody, a few weeks ago, was to get behind one virtuous leader and obey him in all things so that the party might be saved. Now a different plan has been adopted.

"The democrats are to be patterned after and the state committee must be overhauled."

"The humbuggery of it all appeals to me. There seems to be no candor in it, no straight-forward dealing, and I wonder that the people can be so easily fooled."

MADERA ACTIVE

(Douglas International)
Coming from Madera, Mexico, G. W. Suits arrived this morning and expects to go from here to the placer gold fields in the Altar district in Sonora. Mr. Suits has been at Madera for four or five months operating a butcher shop and supplying the surrounding camps with meat.

Madera is the site of the great lumber industry inaugurated in the state of Chihuahua by Colonel W. C. Greene several years ago which has now passed to what is known as the Pearson syndicate. Mr. Suits says that there is much activity now at Madera and that one of the great saw mills is in operation turning out vast amounts of lumber. Another mill is being overhauled and is expected to be ready for operation in the near future, while the logging railroad is being extended into the new timber belts in the Sierra Madres.

Work is progressing on the railroad which is being extended to Madera from Casas Grandes, its present terminus. When this railroad is completed Madera will have direct communication with El Paso whereas now to reach that place one must go via Chihuahua.
